From the Daily Courier.

The jury in the case of the state against Franklin, on trial in the district court for killing Charles Phoenix, returned a verdict this morning in accordance with the court's instructions, acquitting the defendant.

A jury was secured yesterday afternoon and the state's evidence was heard. The defense this morning did not consume much time and the case soon went to the jury with instructions from the court to return a verdict of acquittal. The evidence was all one way and showed clearly that Phoenix attacked Franklin first and that Franklin had no intention of killing him. The court said that while the evidence made it clearly self-evident yet the matter should have been investigated and the county attorney did right in making the case.

If Will Hudson lives to be a thousand years old he will probably never meet with a greater surprise or a more unusual experience than one which he encountered last night. When he went home last night he found a colored man in the house asleep on the couch.

Mr. Hudson went home about 11 p.m., and went in at the front door as usual. He had only one match in his pocket and by his flicking light he saw a man's head and form lying on the couch. At first he supposed it might be some friend playing some sort of a joke, but he felt a little shaky as he walked through the room to look for a lamp. He returned with the lamp in his hand and his heart in his mouth, to find his worst fears realized. It was a big six-foot negro and a total stranger. He was undressed and was comfortably snoring under a couple of covers.

When aroused and asked for an explanation, he languidly told how he had smooched down a friend, and that the house looked uncoupled he tried the door, which he found unlocked, and he walked in. He said he was there for no other purpose than to sleep and did not seem to realize that he had done anything wrong or unusual. At Mr. Hudson's suggestion he got up and leisurely dressed, taking all the time in a very pleasant and gentlemanly manner just as if he was making a friendly call. He was well dressed, apparently educated and perfectly sober. After dressing, he apologized profusely for his intrusion, asked Mr. Hudson's name, in return handing him a card, and then walked away with the air of an honored guest leaving the home of a friend. The card was that of the American Publishing Company of Chicago, and it contained the name of R. L. Sinclair, road superintendent, the name being written in pencil. The strange caller went north on the Santa Fe this morning.

Mr. Hudson discovered later that he gained entrance through the cellar and his purpose was evidently robbery. The supposition is that, finding the house apparently vacant, he thought he might as well sleep there and do his plundering later. Taken all around, Mr. Hudson says he was the strangest guest he ever entertained, and he hopes he will never have another like him.

How to Cure Bilious Colic.

I suffered for weeks with colic and pains in my stomach caused by biliousness and had to take medicine all the while until I used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which cured me. I have since recommended it to a good many people. Mrs. F. Butler, Fairhaven, Conn. Persons who are subject to bilious colic can ward off the attack by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms appear. Sold by druggists.

STOCKS AND BONDS

LIQUIDATION IS THE WHOLE STORY IN THE STOCK MARKET.

Interrupted at Times Only to Continue Its Decline and the Covering Movement in the Last Half Hour Only Served to Lessen Slightly the Width of the Net Losses—Spanish Situation is the Main Influence, the War Scare Being Pre-empted by a High Score—Americans Demoralized in London.

New York, Nov. 5.—The stock market underwent a course of very drastic liquidation today, as a result of which prices were from one to four points lower than they were last night. That this course of things was helped along by professional bear pressure was made manifest by the very urgent covering movement which developed in the final half-hour of trading and which rallied the prices of a great many stocks over a point from the lowest point touched, reducing by so much the losses which would otherwise be shown by the day's trading. But this recovery at the close was on a greatly diminished volume of business and was apparently affected by the temporary withholding of liquidating offerings, as was done once or twice previously during the day, only to be succeeded by renewed liquidation and decline. There is no doubt that the motive of a large part of the selling was the belief that relations between the United States and Spain were drifting toward an open rupture. This has been a bear argument for some time in the stock market and has been quite effective in depressing prices whenever anything that could be construed as corroborative evidence was offered. Apprehensions on this score received a potential stimulus from the action of the New York Chamber of Commerce yesterday in appealing for an increase in the artillery force of the United States army as necessary for the adequate protection of New York and the proper operation of its harbor defenses. The published expressions from the late United States minister to Spain, disclosing the character of the diplomatic relations between the two countries, and his outspoken advocacy of frequent attacks on the United States in Cuban affairs, intensified the sentiment of apprehension among security holders.

The nearer approach of the convening of congress and the belief that this event was to crystallize the government's policy toward Spain made the prospect more vivid to traders' eyes. Some continued apprehension regarding the health of the president of the Sugar company made that stock, with its powerful influence on the whole market, particularly weak. This combination of factors was conclusive in inducing many large holders of securities to unload under the conviction that no immediate recovery in prices of any large dimensions is likely to occur. There was a flood of selling orders and very little disposition in any quarter to buy. As a result enormous blocks of stocks were allowed to go for almost any price they would bring. In the first rush of liquidation prices were offered down very widely before eliciting any buying. The extreme decline in Consolidated Gas reached 9 points, in Sugar 5-8, in Lake Erie and Western preferred 5-12, common 4, and in Manhattan 4-18. There was scarcely an active stock on the list that did not recede at least two points below last night's level. There was a rush to sell bonds as well, and losses of between 1 and 2 points were frequent all through the list. The fact that the liquidation was not precipitated in the opening was due to the fact that London prices of American securities advanced slightly. The enormous interests at that money center are usually so well informed in international affairs that the absence of apprehension there had the effect of steadying prices here momentarily. The fact was not lost sight of either that there was buying for London account in the market at almost the first rush of the decline. After the opening here, prices fell in London to the New York parity. There was nothing to account for the hardening at the close but covering of the shorts.

The total sales of stocks today were 596,600 shares.

BONDS.

Aside from the general weakness in bonds the feature of that market was the strength of the Kansas Pacific consolids.

United States bonds declined 1-4 to 3-8 per cent for all issues.

New York, Nov. 5.—The Evening Post's London financial cablegram says:

"The stock markets were idle but steady today, except Americans, which were flat and demoralized at the opening. Dealers took the fall quite calmly. Indeed, many bought, believing that the release had been far enough. Then New York selling orders came pouring in, with reports of Democratic gains and of Hanna's vacation of a senate seat, of a firm note from Washington to Spain, etc. Consequently there was a further slump, and the close was near the lowest. The other markets were featureless."

The Paris bourse was firm, and the Berlin market was steady.

London, Nov. 5.—Consols for money, 112-11; 10-year, 112-5-16.

New York, Nov. 5.—Money on call 11-12 3/4 per cent; prime mercantile paper 23-24 1/2 per cent. Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at 48-1/2 for demand and at 48-1/2-29-3/4 for sixty days. Posted rates 48-1/2-29-3/4 and 48-1/2-29-3/4. Commercial bills 48-1/2-29-3/4. Silver certificates 67-1/2-18-1/2. Bar silver 67-1/2-18-1/2. Mexican dollars 41-1/2.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

New York, Nov. 5.—In its review of the stock market Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"At the beginning of the week an idea prevailed in Wall street that a more active and better market would develop after the election. On last Monday there was some purchasing of stocks by the bear traders, though it seemed that professional bear pressure was still in control. The market on Wednesday was weak and depressed on the results in some of the states, which, it is argued, indicate a revival of free silver sentiment."

"On Friday the market had a sharp decline, caused by unfavorable advice from Madrid about the Spanish government's attitude toward the United States in relation to Cuba and the resulting call for better fortifications at New York. Considerable liquidation marked the decline."

"London, however, was not a seller of stocks here, and even purchased to some extent on the declines, presumably for the purpose of covering shorts. The public here has been absent from the market, and disappointment with the turn of affairs has induced more or less scattered liquidation of holdings. The bulk of the selling which accompanied the declines was, however, for short account. The bear pressure comes mainly from the smaller traders, who have taken small profits whenever they presented themselves, covering on limited declines and thus producing a number of temporary rallies and giving the market, up to Friday's depression, a very irregular appearance.

"It is recognized that one of the reasons for the inactivity of large interests in the market is furnished by the fact that many houses of the first importance are engaged in the Union Pacific matter, and that until that transaction is completed they are unable to extend in other directions and thus come in a lesser degree may be said of the arrangements just completed by the Chicago Gas people. In the latter part of the week unsettling factors were supplied by the illness of Mr. Havemeyer, who is, however, declared to be convalescent."
